Diesel Fuel Price Trends U.S. retail diesel prices increased +3.29 cts/gal for the week ending 27Dec10 versus 20Dec10. The largest increases were in the Lower Atlantic, Midwest and Central Atlantic regions +4.7 cpg or more. Prices in the Rocky Mountains, New England and West Coast increased +3.9 cpg or less.

Gulf Coast ULSD spot distillate prices increased +8.5 cpg for the week ending 27Dec10 versus 20Dec10. Spot prices are at the highest level of 2010. Price levels are well above the 1, 3 and 6-month averages.

Much above normal heating degree days in the Northeast and improved economic growth expectations for the U.S. as well as robust growth in developing countries are supporting the price strength. Global crude oil supplies continue to tighten, even though North American crude markets are over supplied with WTI prices at record discounts to European and Asian grades.

Supply - Demand Fundamental Trends Diesel fuel wholesale demand increased for the 2nd consecutive week on strong heating demand. Year-on-year growth does remain soft. Production climbed to fresh 5-year highs as winter refinery crude oil runs peaked. Stock levels are near 5-year highs for this time of year. The latest 4-wk stock change was a draw of -0.3 million barrels last week, slightly above the 5-year mid range for markets East of the Rockies.

Diesel Price Outlook The +8.5 cpg increase in Gulf wholesale prices during the last week was more than the +4.6 cpg at the retail level, pointing to additional increases in near term retail prices. Looking ahead, robust economic growth in Asia is tempered by rising interest rates in the region and weakness in the European union countries.

Concurrently, global crude oil supplies continue to tighten even though the North American market is very well supplied. Tightness is driven by meaningful increases in demand by developing countries that are enjoying rapid economic growth.

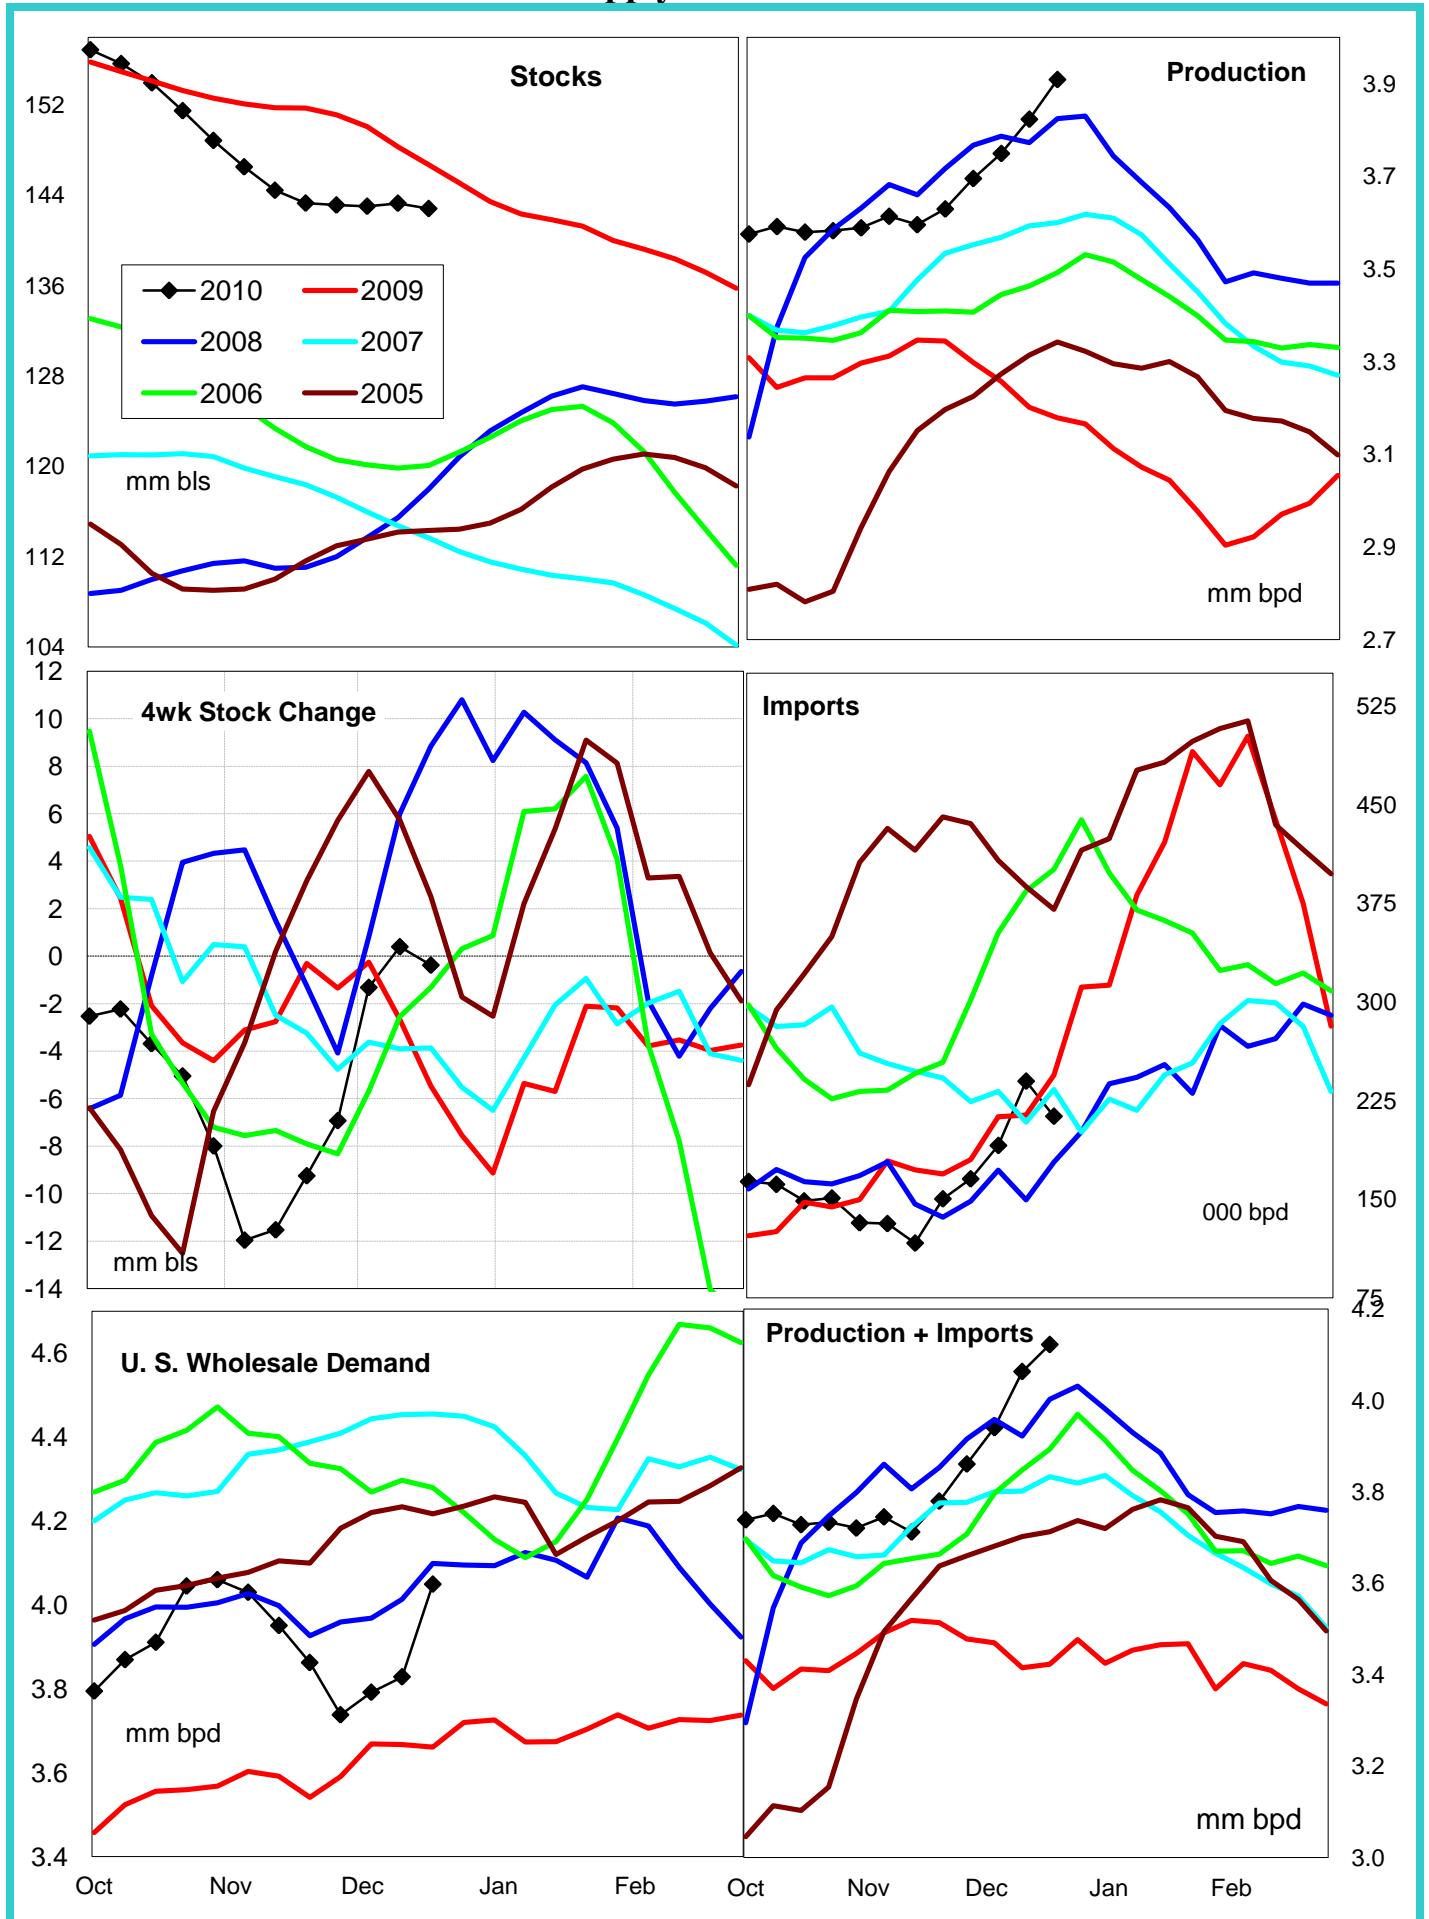

The current seasonal peak in refinery distillate output, low seasonal gasoline demand, and start of winter refinery maintenance in the Gulf during January should lead to a temporary pull back in distillate prices over the next 60-days. Consider awaiting a spot market price pull back to the 60-day or 90-day average to fix transport fuel cost.
